Interesting Facts

- Louis was a exceptional artist when he was a young boy, and he nearly became a painter instead of a scientist.
- Louis was also an average student in his early education, not considered exemplary.
- Louis actually didn’t excel in chemistry as that could be thought due to his extreme successes.
- He had partial paralysis due to a stroke.
- Louis had a massive fear of blood, and is believed to have been dyslexic and dysgraphic

“Science knows no country, because knowledge belongs to humanity, and is the torch which illuminates the world.”

—Louis Pasteur